Personal Summary

Saira can deliver a first-class learning experience through a well-balanced mixture of lecture, classroom lessons, laboratories and workshops. She is passionate about giving an exceptional student experience to those she teaches. As an experienced professional she will have no trouble developing teaching resources and materials which support effective learning in line with a University's course requirements. As a true all-rounder she holds a Master's degree the relevant subject area and has substantial related research and teaching experience. In short, she has the required expertise to teach your students. On a personal level she is keen to influence the workforce of the future and has a deep interest in contemporary learning technologies. As a superb communicator she has the ability to converse at ease with members of the public and provide advice in accurate spoken English. Right now, she would like to join an organization where the successful candidate will have the opportunity to work within a modern building, with excellent on-site facilities, and supportive colleagues.
